

Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island. An American Tradition Since 1887.

THERE'S AN ISLAND in the Great Lakes where life proceeds at the clip-clop pace of a horse-drawn carriage. A place that preserves the traditions of a quieter time. And a resort hotel that's been at its heart for over 100 years.

Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, Michigan. A resort steeped in turn-of-the-century gentility. Where high tea is served every afternoon. And where ladies and gentlemen dress for a five-course dinner, dance between courses, then stroll on the world's longest verandah, watching the sunset glitter on the Straits of Mackinac.

Grand Hotel offers all the amenities you'd expect from a AAA Four-Diamond resort frequented by presidents and governors.

Its exquisite gardens and antique-filled rooms (designed by New York decorator Carleton Varney) were the setting for the romantic film Somewhere in Time.
